Eligibility

The U.S. Department of Education has granted a TPD discharge of your federal student loan(s) and/or TEACH Grant obligation. You are not eligible to receive new federal student loans and/or TEACH Grant in the future unless you reestablish your eligibility.

I do not intend to borrow a federal student loan and/or pursue a TEACH grant.

I do intend to borrow a federal student loan and/or pursue a TEACH grant.

I will submit a Physician Certification to verify my eligibility.

I have a Physician Certification on file from a prior year.

Under the current TPD discharge regulations, individuals who receive a TPD discharge based on a physician's certification will be subject to a 3-year post-discharge monitoring period that begins on the date the U.S. Department of Education grants a discharge. This requirement will also apply to individuals who receive a discharge based on qualifying documentation from the Social Security Administration. If you request a federal student loan and/or TEACH grant during your 3-year monitoring period, your discharged federal student loan(s) and/or TEACH grant obligation could be reinstated.

Under the current TPD discharge regulations, veterans who qualify for TPD discharge based on a Veteran's Administration determination of employability due to a service related disability will not be subject to a post-discharge monitoring period.

I acknowledge I have previously received a TPD discharge for federal student loan(s) and/or TEACH grant. Therefore, I understand any federal student loans and/or TEACH grant funds I receive cannot be cancelled or discharged at any time in the future based on any disability present at the time each new loan is applied for, unless this disability subsequently deteriorates to the status of a total and permanent disability, which must then be re-certified by a physician.
