Warrensburg, MO—The Rho Lambda Honor Society at the University of Central Missouri welcomed ten new members this month during a ceremony held November 18th.

Rho Lambda is a Greek honor society recognizing leadership, service and academics within the sorority community. Rho and Lambda stand for Panhellenic and Leadership, respectively. Membership in the organization is prestigious and limited to no more than 10% of the total campus sorority member population.

In order to be considered for Rho Lambda, women must submit an application displaying their academic and leadership qualifications. Initiates must hold a 2.5 grade point average, be currently classified as a junior or senior, and have been an active member of their chapter for at least two semesters to be considered. The women best displaying loyalty and service to the community are then chosen for membership.

This fall’s initiates were: Katie Brecklin, Amber Cabrera, Amanda Crooks, Emily Elam, Alex Hillis, Ashley Lawrence, Lauren McBride, Chelsea Ortega, Ernestina Sanchez, and Samantha Swallow. With the new initiates, the chapter now stands at 22 members.

The UCM chapter of Rho Lambda is one of 222 nationwide. For more information about Rho Lambda or Greek life at the University of Central Missouri, contact Kelly Waldrum Cramer, Marketing Manager for Housing, at waldram@ucmo.edu or 660-543-8121.
