

Adam Crowe

Adam Crowe is a Certified Emergency Manager who serves as the Director of Emergency Preparedness for Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU). He has worked for the last decade with organizations and preparedness groups throughout the country to better prepare communities, organizations, & businesses for emergencies and disasters. He is a nationally-recognized author & speaker on emergency management and preparedness issues including the application of social media and technology into these processes. He writes a blog called "Disasters 2.0" for Emergency Management Magazine and has written two books; "Disasters 2.0: The Application of Social Media in Modern Emergency Management" and "Leadership in the Open: A New Paradigm in Emergency Management". He lives in Richmond, Virginia, with his wife, son, and two dogs.